Asia Summer Program (ASP) is a three-weeks summer program where students can earn up to four academic credits applicable at their home universities. Each student select one morning course and one afternoon course designed and taught by professors representing the participating universities. The program also includes activities and tours providing insight into the host country's culture as well as promoting cooperation and a sense of international community.

The ASP has been held annually since 2012 and has taken place in a different country each year. In 2013, the ASP was affiliated with the Asian University Presidents Forum, which greatly extended its scope. Since then, students from universities in 18 countries have participated in the Asia Summer Program. In 2019, Petra Christian University as the first founding institution will host the program for the second time.
